Port imported Vercel app to Replit
The user just imported a project from vercel.com. Port it from the imported state into Replit's PNPM_WORKSPACE stack so it runs cleanly in this environment and preserves the original app.
View plan
I've started porting your Vercel app to Replit. I'll preserve the existing app, set up how it runs here, and check its pages and main features.
15 actions
Your app is Clarity, a review-management workspace with hotel, restaurant, and salon demos. I'm preserving its design and review-to-resolution workflow, moving the server features over, and setting up the database it needs.
15 actions
The original interface is now copied over. I'm connecting its existing actions to the Replit server and keeping fixture mode, so the demo can run without AI keys or external review services.
34 actions
The server is connected, and the original domain tests are passing. I've loaded the included synthetic demo data—244 hotel reviews, 80 restaurant reviews, and 18 salon reviews—and am now checking

Clarity is running on Replit. All 24 domain/API tests and both browser tests pass, covering the review-to-reply workflow, persistence, and business isolation. Desktop and phone layouts also checked successfully.
Fixture mode and simulated publishing remain unchanged; live AI calls were not tested.
